WHAT IS TV WEST?

"You get to be creative. It's a good outlet for that," said Crosby Orn (10). TV West, our news and entertainment channel, had a new episode out every Friday there was school. The TV West episodes have different bits and segments, made by a group of dedicated Panthers. They had different roles that were distributed between the members: "I'm a camera operator for Panther In The Hall. When you see a segment of Panther In The Hall, I'm behind the camera or I'm writing questions, said" Eli Jergensen (9).

INDIVIDUAL ROLES:

TV West was comprised of several roles, with different people all having unique segments on the weekly episodes. For example, Eli Jergensen (9) was one of the camera operators for Panther In The Hall, a popular segment of TV West, where he was one of the people filming. Occasionally, he also interviewed students in the hall for the segment. Crosby Orn (10) did skits for TV West, such as exploring parts of the school, like the tunnels under the school, making news skits that aren't actually true, and just trying to be funny and entertaining.

A GUIDE TO TV WEST:

Joining TV West is a multi-step process. To join, you have to take the TV Broadcasting/Video Production class with Mr. Baca. Then, you can take TV Broadcasting/Video Production II, which is the TV West class. Every week, members of TV West make many different clips and edit them all together for a successful TV West episode. No two episodes are the same, and TV West covers many events that happen across the school, such as sports events or school dances. Short films, fake news, advertisements and lots of work all combine to create the TV West we all love.

WEST WINDS

West Winds was our school’s literary magazine, or informally known as a “zine”, an opportunity for students to boost publicity for their art. West Winds accepted all forms of art such as writing, drawing, painting, dance, singing and any other visual art, forming a collection of art representative of students’ experiences throughout the school year. West Winds also hosted open mic nights, where they spotlighted performances focused on music and poetry. “Honestly, I think all the students in West Winds make it all happen because we all have to work together to make this magazine and all these events happen,” said Ori Hullinger (11).

RED & BLACK

The Red & Black, West High’s student-led newspaper, covered happenings around the school, such as sports, dances, school news and student issues. Black day editor-in-chief Havalah Heale (9) said, “The paper is a record for future students at West to look back at and see what West was like in 2023”. The Red & Black was made by a group of individuals all combining stories from around the school to make a beautiful newspaper that encapsulates West. Students submitted their news stories, drawings, poems, jokes and pretty much anything they created. The Red & Black came out twice every month, and was a great report of what happened here at West for students to enjoy and look back on.
